

21 / 09 / 2014

CEPO NEWSLETTER

On 21 September 2014, the European Cooperation Day (EC Day 2014) is celebrated. This is a special date for everybody who conducts projects as part of the program for cross-border cooperation. The Georgikon Faculty of the University of Pannonia in Keszthely and the University of Veterinary Medicine in Vienna have used this program to pool expertise in the field of poultry nutrition and poultry health and to give students and experts the opportunity to think outside the box. For this purpose, the two tradition-rich institutions established a transnational "Centre of Excellence" for poultry. The very great success of this collaboration has encouraged all participants to publish a brochure in which the most important steps and results of the project are summarized. In this way the unifying character of this project in its various facets should be mentioned again, just in the sense of a fruitful transboundary cooperation.

A projekt az Ausztria-Magyarország Határon Átnyúló Együttműködési Program 2007-2013 keretében az Európai Regionális Fejlesztési Alap, a Bécsi Állatorvostudományi Egyetem, valamint Magyarország támogatásával valósul meg./ Dieses Projekt wird im Rahmen des ETZ Programms zur grenzüberschreitenden Kooperation ÖSTERREICH-UNGARN 2007-2013 durch den Europäischen Fonds für regionale Entwicklung, durch die Veterinärmedizinische Universität Vienna und Ungarn gefördert.